Subject: Application - Principal Web Engineer (#2311)

Dear Hiring Manager,

I am applying for the Principal Web Engineer role focused on high-performance brand websites for Go To Foods' digital platform. My recent work centers on enterprise ecommerce where performance, SEO, and experimentation directly affect revenue-exactly the outcomes your posting emphasizes.

At Saks OFF 5TH I led initiatives that improved site speed materially, strengthened SEO, supported ADA compliance, and ran Optimizely/A/B programs inside the Salesforce B2C Commerce stack. At Bath & Body Works I contributed to a PWA Kit/headless direction with React-oriented storefront patterns, checkout and loyalty features, and mobile-focused delivery. I partner well with design (Figma) and product, and I am comfortable triaging production issues when releases land. I will be candid: my deepest tenure is in SFCC-class storefront engineering rather than a multi-year dedicated Next.js/Tailwind product team, but I learn stacks quickly and I already care about Core Web Vitals-class problems, security on customer paths, and clean API consumption.

Multi-brand food retail and QSR-adjacent digital share the same pressure: conversion, reliability, and integrations (payments, identity, CMS). I would welcome a conversation about how your team standards Next.js, Tailwind, and design systems so I can align my first 90 days with your expectations.

I understand the role may include up to ~25% travel and fixed hybrid Atlanta; I can discuss geography and schedule openly. I use GitHub Copilot where it accelerates delivery without cutting corners on review.

Thank you for considering my application. A tailored CV for this role accompanies my materials.

Sincerely,

Terry J. Mork
